VICTORY SIGN BOARD

May Be Erected Here to Show Progress of Victory Ship.

A novel idea will be carried out by the United States Navy in the coming Victory-Liberty Loan campaign. A Victory ship will sail from San Francisco to New York by way of the Panama Canal and register the course of the nation's drive.

The speed of the ship will be determined by the progress of the drive and the object will be to bring the ship to New York, "the harbor of Victory," before the end of the drive. Large map sign boards will be erected throughout the country on which the progress of the Victory ship will be marked daily.

Chief Musician Linton, in charge of the Navy Recruiting station here, expects one of the boards may be erected here on which he will mark the daily progress of the Victory ship's voyage.

CONNELLVILLE DISTRICT'S QUOTA IN VICTORY-LIBERTY
LOAN GIVEN AS $1,172,352*SERGEANT OLIVER
STILLWAGON CITED FOR A HEROIC ACT

Broad Ford Soldier, Wounded, Repairs Jammed Machine Gun Under Heavy Fire at St. Jurin.

Sergeant Oliver L. Stillwagon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stillwagon of Broad Ford, has been cited for distinguished service and heroism, a message to that effect having been received by the young soldier's parents from the War Department. The citation was as follows:

On October 16, 1918, during the attack on St. Jurin, France, Sergeant Oliver L. Stillwagon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stillwagon, pushed one of his machine guns to the top of a nearby hill, which was under heavy fire. This gun jammed and the gunner being unable to get it into action again, Sergeant Stillwagon ran forward through the field of fire and repaired it. Although wounded, personally he succeeded in getting it into action again.

Sergeant Stillwagon was a draftsman and had been in France since last May. He was attached to Company B, 320th Machine Gun Battalion. He has recovered from a wound of the back and is with his company again. According to word received by his parents he expects to sail for the States in April. Sergeant Stillwagon was born and reared at Broad Ford and is one of the best known young men of that community.

TITLE UNDER CLOUD

Woman Writes to Fayette County for Information to Establish Claim.

Widowed by the war, in which she also lost two sons, Mrs. Alice Billingsley Latourne of 19 Rue de Pommeroy, Paris, has written a letter to Fayette county asking whether there are any known living descendants of the Brown family of Meriden township or the Hardesty family of Washington township.

The letter says it is thought William Brown died March 1, 1835, but that perhaps members of his family might still be living about here. A land warrant was issued to the Hardesty family in 1784 and it is thought Thomas Hardesty is still living in this country. The woman wishes to prove her right and title to a property in France.

CROSS FOR THOMPSON

Colonel of 110th Cited for Distinguished Heroism Under Fire.

A Distinguished Service Cross has been awarded to Colonel Joseph H. Thompson, 110th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action. The official citation by General Pershing reads as follows:

"Colonel Joseph H. Thompson, 110th Infantry, for extraordinary heroism in action near Argentan, France, October 1, 1918. Counter attacked by two regiments of the enemy, Colonel Thompson (then major) encouraged his battalion in the front line by constantly braving the hazardous fire of machine guns and artillery. His courage was mainly responsible for the heavy repulse of his enemy. Later in the action he rushed forward on foot, under heavy rifle and anti-tank fire, and led tanks on enemy machine gun nests and succeeded in reducing these strongholds. He was ordered to the rear after being painfully wounded by shrapnel. Home address, Mrs. Violet E. S. Thompson, wife, Patterson Heights, Boxer Falls, Pa."

COUNTY TOTAL $6,049,550

First National Bank Leads in City in the Amount Required to be Raised in Drive Beginning Monday; Second National Second; Citizens Third.

Connellsville's district quota in the Victory-Liberty Loan campaign opening on Monday will be $1,172,352.35, as computed by E. T. Norton this morning. That amount compares with $1,607,550 assigned to the Connellsville district in the Fourth Loan. Official announcement of the quota will come in a few days.

The quota for the district is based on the bank deposits on December 31, 1918. The quota will have to be secured from Connellsville, South Connellsville, Connellsville township, Upper Tyrone township, Bullskin township, Saltlick township, Springfield township, Stewart township, the borough of Ohioville and that part of Dunbar township immediately adjacent to the city limits on the West Side.

The quotas of the various banks follow:

First National, $337,821.35; Second National, $186,873.83; Citizens National, $137,791.27; Title & Trust, $135,698.63; Union National, $61,431.21; Colonial National, $101,623.22; Young Trust, $101,109.21.

Official announcement gives the Fayette county quota in the Victory-Liberty Loan campaign which opens on Monday as $6,049,550. This is a million dollars less than was asked of the county in the Fourth Liberty Loan drive and it is confidently expected that Fayette will finish the job of going over the top big.

Announcement of official quotas for the various districts in the county will be made within a few days. The amount to be asked of Connellsville will be based on the bank deposits on December 31, 1918.

In the Fourth loan, with a quota of more than $7,000,000, Fayette county passed that mark, reaching $11,000,000, with a lower quota in the Victory-Liberty loan every canvasser is out to reach this mark long before the drive officially ends.

With the exception of the organization of the mountain districts, some of which are still hanging back, the Connellsville district Victory Loan machinery is now about practically complete.

The first day of the drive will see an Army tank in action here. Arrangements for its exhibition will be announced later this week. The tank will arrive at 10 o'clock in the morning. It is a Whippet, manned by two veterans of overseas service. It is the exact copy of the famous French Renault tank and weighs 35 tons. It is mounted on a two-ton trailer, all of which is hauled by a five ton army motor truck.

Advertising matter is being distributed in large quantities. Posters of various sizes and descriptions are being placed on buildings and other prominent places. Smaller stickers with the big "V," symbolical of the Victory Loan, are being pasted on automobile windshields.

On the trophy train, which will be here on Saturday, April 26, will be all kinds of war material. Guns and other weapons of war which have been actual service will be exhibited, together with a remarkable collection of war photographs, which alone are worth seeing.

Among the heavier pieces carried for exhibition purposes are German field guns, "Big Berthas," howitzers, trench mortars, mine throwers, anti-aircraft guns, also French 75s, and other artillery. The guns are mounted on open flat cars, electrically lighted. The smaller exhibits include German helmets, gas masks, iron crosses, airplane bombs, torpedoes and a multitude of other military supplies.

WANT BETTER SERVICE

Patrons of B. & O. Wire Officials Asking for Extension of Schedule.

A flood of telegrams flowed out today from Connellsville, Uniontown and other places between here and Morgantown, W. Va., urging officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company to extend the schedule of trains 63 and 64 to include Connellsville, instead of running only between Morgantown and Fairmont.

Telegrams were sent to Federal Manager C. W. Galloway, General Superintendent J. F. Keegan and General Passenger Agent J. P. Targert. It is held there is more demand for this train between Connellsville and Morgantown than between Morgantown and Fairmont.

28TH DIVISION
MOVING TO PORT
WITHIN 10 DAYS

Indications Are Keystone Command Will Be Home Ahead of Schedule.

FINE MORALE MAINTAINED

Officers and Men Highly Praised by General Pershing in Letter to Major General William Hay; Promotions for Officers of the 110th Infantry.

Ten days from today, or in two weeks at the most, the first units of the 28th Division expect to be on their way to Brest, according to a special story from Le Mans, France, printed today in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Word through official sources confirmed the belief that the end of April would see the Keystone Division, enroute for the French sector, preparatory to sailing home two or three weeks ahead of the original schedule.

All units of the division are undergoing a rigid field inspection for the purpose of checking up individual equipment. All infantry regiments have been through this final once-over of what the soldier has. In addition, official announcement was made from division headquarters that all leaves, except three days in Paris, are cancelled.

General Pershing's letter of commendation, declaring the Keystone Division had lost none of its splendid morale since it was taken out of the fighting line after the armistice until the time of its review in the Meuse valley, March 19, has been read to every member of the 28th Division.

Commanders stood with their company in one of the heavy rains this section is experiencing, acquainting the men in the ranks with "Black Jack" Pershing's words. The letter, unexpected as it was, made a profound impression and went far to heighten the spirits of the men.

General Pershing's letter follows: "American Expeditionary Forces. 'Office of the Commander in Chief, 'Chaumont, March 21, 1919. 'Major General William H. Hay, 'Commanding 28th Division, 'American Expeditionary Forces, 'France."

"My Dear General Hay: I give you a great deal of pleasure to congratulate you and through you the officers and men of your division on the splendid record showing made at the inspection and review on March 10 at Colombey-les-Belles. The appearance and the equipment of the troops and also the condition of the animal transport of your division are to be highly commended. To me this is an indication of that same high morale in your command which it possessed while in the fighting line."

"Arriving in the spring of 1918 for training with the British, the period of instruction of the 28th Division was cut short, and by the middle of July it was thrown into the active battle to take part in the successful Champagne-Marne offensive. For nearly two weeks the infantry brigades operated under French and other divisional commanders, taking part in the Alsace-Marne offensive as reserve of the Third Division, which was fighting its way north from the river. On the 28th, however, the division was regrouped under its own commander and from that time fought as a unit."

"The 5th Brigade went into the line, relieving the 39th French Division in front of Clerges and the Bois de Grimpettes, where after two days' severe fighting the Ourcq river was crossed and the town of Clerges was captured."

From the same source it is learned the other person under arrest is a Miss Evans of Connellsville, who, it was said, is not connected with the theft.

The officers were said to have been on the trail of Lou Geras, who was reported to be involved, but he eluded them and escaped in a taxicab. He is reported to have gone to Syracuse, N. Y.

SITUATION STILL FULL OF PERIL, LLOYD GEORGE TELLS CRITICS IN COMMONS SPEECH

British Premier Plends That Conference at Paris Be Let Alone.

"ARE TRYING TO DO BEST"

Big Four Takes Up Consideration of Schleswig-Holstein, Heligoland and the Adriatic Situation; Italian (Vittorio) Protests With Their Premier.

Special to The Courier.
LONDON, April 15.—Replying in the house of commons today to previous criticisms of his activities at the peace conference in Paris Premier Lloyd George said the situation was "still full of peril for all countries." He pleaded that "those who were trying to do their best be let alone."

No conference in history, the premier said, had been faced with problems of such variety, complexity, magnitude and gravity. The congress of Vienna, which was the nearest approach to it, took 11 months for the work but that congress, Mr. Lloyd George pointed out, sank into insignificance as compared with what had been settled by this conference.

After referring to the world-wide extent of the war the premier said that new states had sprung into existence, some of them independent, some semi-independent and some that might be protectorates and although their boundaries might not be defined some indication of them must be given.

The time spent by the peace conference in framing the League of Nations plan saved time instead of wasting it, Mr. Lloyd George declared, as the league would provide a means of adjustment of possible errors.

"I would rather leave Russia Bolshevik until they see their way out of it, rather than see Great Britain landed in bankruptcy," was one of the premier's declarations.

"It is not true that the United States and Europe have been at variance," the premier declared. He deprecated attempts to sow dissension among the delegates.

In answer to a question from John R. Clines, a labor leader, whether approaches had been made to come from the United States, the premier said: "We have had no approaches of any sort of kind. None has been put before the conference."

Mr. Lloyd George said it was his earnest conviction that military intervention in Russia would be the greatest act of stupidity.

The premier said reliable information showed that while the Bolsheviks were apparently strong, Bolshevism itself was gradually weakening, breaking down before the relentless force of economic facts.

Questions have cropped up at the peace conference which imperiled the peace of Europe but the premier believed the conference had surmounted those difficulties.

"The allied representatives in Paris have arrived at a complete understanding on the great fundamental questions that would effect peace with Germany," Premier Lloyd George declared. The allies had formulated their demands and he hoped that by the end of next week they would be presented.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Diplomatic improvement in the general peace conference situation was reported to the White House today from Paris. It was indicated that excellent progress was being made toward concluding the negotiations.

PARIS, Tuesday, April 15.—The council of four today discussed questions relative to Schleswig-Holstein, Heligoland and the Adriatic.

While the council was in session the foreign ministers met and considered claims made by Germany to holdings in islands in the Antarctic ocean.

The foreign ministers also took up the draft of articles for the peace treaty providing for the recognition by Germany of the British positions in Egypt and the passing over of the Sultan's rights under the Suez canal convention, the acceptance by Germany of Allied price court decisions and likewise an article dealing with the future status of Morocco.

President Wilson headed the day by a series of calls at the American headquarters, visiting General Bliss, Colonel E. M. House and others, discussing with them phases of the situation in which they are particularly interested.

General Muir Decorated.
General Charles H. Muir, formerly commander of the 28th Division, United States Army, has been made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, according to a dispatch from Cologne, Germany.

SPECIAL TRAIN AND CAR SERVICE FOR CELEBRATION

Transportation Committee Is Working on Plans For Carrying Visitors.

TRADESMEN TO THE FRONT

Union Men Asked to Be Assigned to Second Division, Behind the Service Men. But Proposal Is Left to Chief Marshal; Illumination Plans Ready.

Although no date can be set for the home-coming celebration, it was planned last night at a meeting of the central committee to have special trains and cars run from all points in the county to Connellsville. The proposal of a special train from Brownsville over the Pennsylvania railroad was brought up and also running cars from Masontown and all points that neither railroad could reach. R. E. Wilhelm, representing the Pennsylvania Railroad company, said that the Pennsylvania would require a deposit of so much money before it would run a special train. If the proceeds of the sale of tickets should amount to more than the deposit the difference would be returned, he said. The transportation committee was advised to correspond with the committee at Brownsville to see what it wished done. Representatives of the transportation committee at the meeting were Mr. Wilhelm, R. W. Hoover and Daniel Durie.

The illuminating committee, of which Frank R. Sweeney is chairman, reported that he and W. L. Koney had covered the whole city and had made maps of the illuminating plan. He was instructed to let the central committee inspect the map before advertising for bids for the contracts.

S. Desmonde, in behalf of the Connellsville Trades & Labor council, requested that the crafts that are affiliated with the council be given a place in the second division of the big parade as there would likely be a large number of men that stood back of the boys "Over There" and as the boys will have the first division they would like to march back of them "Over Here." He said each of the 22 crafts would have a big representation. No decision was made, as that will be left to the central committee.

A representative of the Baltimore and Ohio Federation of Labor, J. M. Keane, announced that the committees of the Baltimore and Ohio brotherhoods and unions would meet with the main committee in the city hall Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. This will include all committees appointed.

Mr. Desmonde said that it was an unusual thing for the brotherhoods to act in cooperation with the Federation of Labor as they usually worked by themselves, and he considered it a great thing if they would unite for this celebration as it would include over 1,200 men.

"If there is any improvement in working conditions between now and that time," he said, "you won't have many railroad men, but if things stay the way they are now, you'll have a million."

The question of erecting a steel arch or court of honor somewhere in the city was not mentioned at last night's meeting. This matter was proposed in city council meeting Monday night and referred to the central committee.

SITUATION STILL FULL OF PERIL

WILSON MAY STAY FOR SIGNING OF TREATY.

PARIS, April 16.—Now that the Germans have been called to Versailles on April 25 the indications are that the proceedings may move with such dispatch that President Wilson can remain for the signing of the treaty and thus be able to take back the completed document.

This was the view of the President's intimates when their attention was called to the reports in French papers that his departure had been fixed on April 23. It was declared that no such intention had been formed and that the progress on the main questions now gave promise that the President would not only attend the opening of the congress at Versailles but would remain long enough to see its work carried through although prolonged delay by the enemy delegates would of course prevent such action.

Precise details of what is to be done on the arrival of the German delegates is being worked out. Preliminary to their arrival, a plenary session of the peace conference is to determine on the final course to be pursued by the Allies before entering into relations with the German plenipotentiaries.

EXECUTION OF HUNGARIAN LEADERS IS DENIED.

Origin of Medicines.

The agents employed for the treatment of disease are taken from the three kingdoms of nature, the vegetable, animal and mineral. Most medicinal substances are taken from the vegetable kingdom and consist of leaves, flowers, seeds, barks and roots. The old-fashioned root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which owes its success to the vegetable kingdom, has constantly grown in popularity and favor until it is now recognized as the standard remedy for female ills.—Adv.

Straight Coat and Narrow Skirt Model

There are several styles in suits that have almost equal chances for popularity this spring and the only way to determine which is the best choice is to try them on. Straight, short coats, opening over vestees, with narrow plain skirts, are universally admired, but they are not universally becoming. If they were there is no doubt but that this type of suit would soon lead all the rest. The test of becomingness must settle the question of choice; no other consideration is so important. But there is quite a wide range in styles to choose from, so that every woman may be confident of finding the particular one that suits her best.

One of the straight-coat-and-narrow-skirt models is shown in the picture and it is an extreme example of this mode, with a skirt rather too narrow to be practical. But to the woman who aspires to look slender it will certainly make a strong appeal, for the skirt is long as well as narrow. The very thin woman cannot consider it. The coat is a pretty model with three tucks at the bottom and it opens over a waistcoat of plain tricolette that is very smart. It has a wide turn-over collar and a row of large bone buttons down the left side. Braid and buttons decorate the pretty suit that is shown built on entirely different lines from its companion in the picture. It has a plain skirt wide enough to be comfortable for walking. The coat is made with long side bodies and a short panel at the center of the back to which a gathered skirt portion is added. Three groups of braid, with three rows in each group ending in bone buttons, dispose of the braid and button decoration in neat, tailored fashion, on the panel. The same decoration on the skirt portion ends in buttons on the side pieces and this plan is followed out on the front. For those who do not like braid or want a change from it the styles offer cross-bar and other arrangements of pin tucks and groups of wider tucks in the material.

DOG FED TRAPPED FRIEND

Massachusetts Farm Agent Tells Remarkable and Touching Story of Canine Affection.

In the Telegram, Worcester, Mass., John E. Deserth, field agent of Worcester county farm bureau, tells this story of the intelligence, sympathy, affection and clever understanding on the part of a dog, which came under his observation in a recent visit to Princeton.

A Princeton man who is fond of horses and dogs owns a finely bred hunting dog and he missed it for several days. He made inquiries all around, but no one had seen anything of the animal, and after a week the owner gave it up as lost. One of the farm hands was rambling through a chopped off wood lot a few days later and came upon the dog caught in a steel trap set for a skunk. Both fore-paws were held in the jaws of the trap and the dog could not escape.

But in spite of its terrible predicament it was not emaciated, and although in pain had not gnawed its forelegs as many animals will do when they are in the torture of a steel trap. Strangely all, scattered all around were bones and scraps of meat. Several hen bones and beef bones, with shreds of meat still clinging, were under the captive's nose, and it was chewing a bone when the farmer discovered its plight.

The trapped dog was carried home to the arms of a man who found it, and then, a little later, the owner went to the trap to see who or what brought those bones and scraps of dog food to the suffering captive. While he stood silently regarding the little heap of bones and scraps, another dog from his own kennel came through the brush with its jaws filled with chicken bones, meat trimmings and other gleanings from the kitchen garbage pail. The dog dropped its load close to the trap and sniffed around as if it were worried.

Calling the dog after him, the owner went back to where the trapped dog was licking its wounds. When the other dog saw the rescued animal it barked, cowered around, wagged its tail almost off, and then lent its own moist tongue to the healing process on its friend's sorely bruised paws.

Study the Words of Songs.
In their efforts to secure good diction—by taking lessons from a high-priced coach—singers often overlook the benefit which may be secured by reading, with careful attention the texts of the songs they are to sing.

It is manifest that a singer who cannot give an intelligent rendering of a poem cannot give an intelligent interpretation of that poem in singing. The words of each word, each phrase, and their relation to each other, and to the whole thought, are legitimate objects for thorough study. Especially is this true of the poems which are so valuable in speech or in the rendering of a poem.

A Benefactor.

"I owe a debt of gratitude to that man."

"That grocery magazine editor?"

"Why?"

"He refused to publish a lot of poetry I wrote in my youth."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THREE OF MANAGERIAL CHANGES IN BIG LEAGUES CAUSE OF UNFAVORABLE TALK

New and Old Bosses in Major Circuits.

Big league managers come and go between fading and blooming seasons. Scarcely a year goes by that fails to see one or more managerial air castles blown to the four winds, and the winter season of 1918-19 has run true to form.

Four of the 16 major league clubs enter the coming season with new pilots. The Reds, Phillies, Cardinals and White Sox will launch their peacetime campaigns next summer with strange hands holding the reins. Three of the four changes have caused much comment—mostly unfavorable comment—among baseball servers. The cases of Pat Moran, Jack Hendricks and Clarence Rowland have been argued pro and con.

Deserved Better Fate. Rowland's release by Charley Comiskey was a surprise. Inasmuch as the dapper little ex-Sox leader was thought to be "hot" with the Old Roman. Apparently, to the outsider, Rowland's release was undeserved. He piloted the world's champions of 1917 for Comiskey, and he had a host of friends in the majors, friends he won for himself. But the indicator swerved from Rowland to Kid Gleason, seasoned and highly deserving veteran.

And the fan did not have to read between the lines to see that Comiskey credited Gleason with the success of his club in 1917 and the fact that it fell down last season after Gleason had refused to return as coach. Yet on the face of things Rowland did not deserve his release.

Sympathy for Moran.

Pat Moran, with one pennant and two second-place finishes at Philadelphia in four years, scarcely deserved the treatment he got. Pat's trouble started and ended with the sale of Alexander and Kliffert to the Cubs. But Pat is now the pilot of the Reds, succeeding Christy Mathewson, who has been more or less a failure as a manager, and it's our guess that Jack Combs is welcome to Moran's old job as far as Moran can see it.

Jack Hendricks, now returned to Indianapolis after a disastrous season with the Cardinals, did not have a fair trial as a major league manager. The claim is made that Hendricks lacks the ability to handle men; that he does not carry the method of getting the best out of big league prima donnas. While his record in the minors would tend to prove that he knows how to handle players and develop them, it got him nothing at St. Louis.

Such is the life of the big league managers. A warm, hearty greeting and a slap on the back one year, walking papers, with their attendant humiliation, the next.

INTERESTING SPORT PARAGRAPHS

The Red Sox will have about the stiffest infield in the big leagues this season.

Forest Cady, former catcher with the Boston Red Sox, wants to play on the Pacific coast.

Oakland is well pleased at the return of outfielder Lawrence (Black) Miller by the Boston Americans.

Bradley Hogg, pitcher for the Phillies, has changed his mind again and at latest accounts has "retired."

Experts who saw Lew Tander box Joe Welling are divided as to whether the Philadelphia has the makings of a lightweight champion.

Chase began his major league baseball career in New York. It looks as if he will end it there now that the Giants have grabbed him.

Another University of Santa Clara star is to break into the professional game through the medium of the Pacific Coast league. He is Jack O'Neill, a shortstop.

Herb Hunter, who was being depended on by the San Francisco club for its outfield, is in the navy hospital at San Diego with a broken knee and may not be able to play ball again.

The New York clubs have a weakness for players they have disposed of. Ray Keating and Jack Quinn of the Yanks, and Herzog, Demmie, Doyle and Murray have had this experience.

The transfer of pitcher Harry Salter from the New York Giants to the Cincinnati Reds is said to be entirely satisfactory to the bank southpaw, since it permits him to be near his home much of the season.

This Speaker gradually is gathering his friends about him on the Cleveland team and the Indians begin to look much like the old Red Sox. The former Boston players now include Speaker, Wood, Nussmeier, Thomas and Cardner.

If Carl Wellman comes back this season he will surprise St. Louis fans pleasantly. Reverse English goes on that for the other cities on the circuit.

Arthur Irwin will have three boys on his Rochester team this year who learned their baseball on the Brooklyn lots. They are Jack Bracy, Hank Hagan and Walter Hoyt.

Brooklyn has signed an infielder named Bevil. Pittsburgh will shortly sign pitcher Chilo; the Giants are after catcher Ecuador, and the Reds will probably engage the famous battery of Paragary and Uruguay.

Does Your Husband Drink? Druggist Tells How to Cure the Liquor Habit at Home

Free Prescription Can Be Filled at Any Drug Store and Given Secretly.

Mr. H. J. Brown, a Cleveland man, was for many years a confirmed drunkard. His friends and relatives despaired of ever reclaiming him. His sister sought the best medical men in Europe in the hope that she might find something that would cure him. Finally she was recommended to an eminent chemist who gave her a private formula (the same as appears below) and told her how to use it. She had it filled at the drug store and gave it to him secretly. The results were startling. In a few weeks he was completely cured. That was over ten years ago and he has not touched a drop since. He now occupies a position of trust and is a valuable man in his efforts to help others overcome the liquor habit. He feels that he can best do this by making public the same formula, which cured him. Here is the prescription: Go to any first-class drug store and get prepared Tescum powder. Drop one powder twice a day in coffee, tea or any liquid. It is harmless, tasteless, odorless and cannot be detected. You can use it without the knowledge of anyone. A lady who recently tried it on her husband reports: "My husband was on a spree when I got the powder, and he usually stays drunk from three to four weeks at a time. After putting the powder in his coffee for four days, he sobered up and has not taken a drink since, and says he is through with it forever. He also complained that whiskey did not taste the same. I shall not tell him what did it, but I am grateful for this help and I shall recommend it whenever possible."

NOTE—A leading druggist when shown the above article, said: "Yes, Tescum is a very remarkable remedy for the drink habit. It is harmless, wonderfully effective and is having an enormous sale. I advise every one who wishes to destroy the liquor habit to give it a trial." It is sold in this city by J. C. Moore and other first-class druggists.

GRIFFITH WILL HAVE ONE REAL SCRAPPER

Claims Agnew, Red Sox Catcher, Who Hit Him in 1916.

Washington Manager Has Thought It a Shame That Such a Fighter as Sam Should Be Wasted in Hub—in Fine Backstop.

Clark Griffith wants to have a scrappy club this year. So he expects to close a deal by which Sam Agnew, Red Sox catcher, will play in Washington, he announced. And when he signs Agnew, Griffith will know he has a fighter on his pay roll. He has first-hand information on the point, for Sam busted him on the nose three years ago, when the Nationals and Red Sox had an argument at the local park, writes J. V. Fitzgerald in Washington Post.

Griff was right there then to show he wouldn't finish second in an argument of fists with any player in the business, let alone Agnew, but kind friends intervened and the Washington manager didn't have to be listed as a bed-ridden casual. Ever since Griffith has thought it a shame that such a fighter as Agnew has been wasted up in the Hub. Hereafter, unless there is a last-minute hitch, Sam will do his fighting for, instead of against, Griffith.

Little chance of anything developing that will keep the fighting Sam off the Washington pay roll is expected. When the Sox asked manager Griffith to claim the catcher, and he had a talk with him in Lebanon the other day. They long since buried the hatchet over that crack on the beeper, and Sam allowed he would be perfectly willing to come here—if he gets his price.

This, according to Griffith, is not exorbitant, but in order to complete the deal for the slugging (in a pugilistic sense) Agnew, the boss of the Nationals, wants the Red Sox to cut the waiver price of $2,500 for him. He says if Boston will do this he will be able to pay Agnew what he asks, thereby giving Boston some money.

Agnew a job and Griffith a slugging (still speaking in the pugilistic vernacular) catcher.

When it comes to slugging, as we know it in baseball, Sam is in the never-was class. Anything over a 200 batting average is as fond money to him. But Sam can catch, even if he can't win a fat man's race or hit a ball hard, and he is a regular Dempsey when it comes to punching. So if he doesn't win a few games he may at least win a few fights for Griffith.

Robert Louis Stevenson's Prayer. Robert Louis Stevenson's last prayer tells us how all great men live by faith of the life hereafter. Assembling his servants, at the end of the day, in his house in Samoa, he prayed: "Believe us with favor, folk of many families and nations; gathered together in the peace of this room. Weak men and women, subsisting under the covert of thy patience, be patient still. Suffer us yet a while longer, with our broken purposes of good, with our idle endeavor against evil. Bless to us our extraordinary masters. If the day come when these must be taken, brace us to play the man under affliction. Call us up with morning faces and with morning hearts, eager to labor, eager to be happy, if happiness shall be our portion, and, if the day be marked for sorrow, strong to endure."—From a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis at Brooklyn, N. Y.

"THE WICKED DARLING"—With Priscilla Dean, the popular Bluebird star, in the leading role is being shown today. The story is that of a girl who tried to beat back to the straight and narrow path because, all of a sudden, she had learned to love a man who told that path unwaveringly. He did not know that she had been a thief and above all, he did not know that she had the pearl necklace she had stolen from his fiancée still in her possession. She was afraid to go to him and tell him about her and then an old associate in crime told too man, after all, in portraying a poor little mother, a thoroughbred of the underworld, these expressions can be thus combined, Priscilla Dean has added another role to her gallery of entrancing portraits which will be long remembered by her friends. Evelyn Campbell wrote the story of "The Wicked Darling" and Tod Browning directed it. Miss Dean is supported by Wellington Playter, Spottiswood Alker and others. Thursday June Elvidge supported by Frank Mayo, and Madge Evans, will be presented in "The Love Defender," a World attraction of exceptional interest. Friday and Saturday, Madge Kennedy will appear in "Day Dreams," a Goldwyn feature in which romance and reality run neck and neck through the plot. John Bowers plays opposite Miss Kennedy.

THE SOISSON.

"THE REBELLIOUS WIFE"—In which Peggy Hyland, the pugnant William Fox star, is seen in a delightful role is being shown today. Miss Hyland is seen in the role of Cynthia Quimby, a child of the Quimby, bright, care-free and full of innocent mischief. She lives with her grandfather, who has decided to marry her to Tobias Plunkett, the schoolmaster who though not a young man looks like a good catch to the grandfather, a man who will tame his wild Cynthia. The girl has another admirer, Jeff Peters, a bad man, who always he can lick at one in the mountains. One evening old Quimby overhears Jeff making love to Cynthia, but he does not hear Cynthia coax Jeff to do something to prevent the contemplated wedding. Fearful that his plans will miscarry, Quimby demands that Cynthia marry Plunkett, the next day. His plans are not carried out. The play is replete with fine situations, tense moments and quaint characters. It is fifty per cent comedy, and a delightful clean comedy it is. It is a picture quite out of the ordinary and very satisfying; is filled with surprises and has a powerful climax. A selected comedy is also being shown. Both attractions will be shown tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. Robert "Waxey" will be presented in "The Accidental Honey-moon."

METHODISTS ENROLL MANY TITHERS IN THE LOCAL REGION

Figures show 117 in McKeesport District, 1,227 in Blairsville, 4th Century Campaign.

The Methodist centenary campaign for tithers and members of the Fellowship of Intercession is reaching its climax this week in a series of meetings in the churches in the Pittsburgh area. That the campaign for the tithers and members of the praying fellowship is yielding results is evidenced by the report submitted this week by Rev. George E. Farrar, secretary of the stewardship department, to Dr. Appleton Bash, executive secretary of the area. The report shows that 12,927 already have been enrolled in Western Pennsylvania, Southwestern New York and West Virginia as tithers. Two weeks ago there were only 4,916.

The Fellowship of Intercession already has 22,104 members in the Pittsburgh area. Enthusiasts of Intercessors and tithers reported by Dr. Farrar for the various church districts to date include the following:

FAMOUS PEACE TREATIES

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

TREATY BETWEEN EMPEROR CHARLES V. AND FRANCIS I.

A Treaty of Peace That Was Longer in the Making Than in the Observance.

The treaty between the Emperor Charles V and Francis I of France is an example of a treaty which was longer in its making than it was in its observance. It is cited by all writers on international law and commentators on peace treaties in their arguments as to the binding force of a treaty signed under duress—though, as a matter of fact, every treaty signed by a defeated nation may be said to be signed under compulsion. It is also worthy of note that after the peace conference had lasted six months, the treaty had been signed and the high contracting parties to it had taken their solemn oaths to observe it, the emperor and the king challenged each other to a duel over it.

In February, 1525, the armies of France were defeated at Pavia by the armies of Charles V, emperor of Germany and king of Spain. The French king was taken prisoner and went from the stricken field his celebrated message "All is lost save honor." Francis was taken to Spain and moved about from one strong castle to another, the emperor refusing to see him except once when, Francis feeling ill, Charles went to him and was greeted by the French king with the remark "So you have come to see your prisoner die."

Opening of Negotiations.

As early as July 20, however, negotiations were opened at Toledo between the ambassadors of Francis for he was still king of France and had his ambassadors—and the emperor and his advisers. The terms proposed by the imperial delegates were harsh in the extreme and amounted to virtual dismemberment of France. Henry VIII sent delegates, being anxious to form an alliance with the emperor and share in the spoils. But the English people, for once, firmly opposed Henry's policy, so he switched around to the French side and signed a treaty with the regent, Louise of Savoy, for which that astute woman paid Henry 2,000,000 crowns and gave the negotiator, Cardinal Wolsey, a pension of 100,000 crowns—a crown at that time being worth $112.

The emperor gradually abated his terms and on January 14, 1526, the treaty was signed at Madrid. By it Charles was to have Burgundy and its dependencies, Francis was restored to liberty, leaving his two sons as hostages for the fulfillment of the conditions of the treaty, and peace was to

Robert C. Bigam's Funeral.

Funeral services for Robert C. Bigam, who died Friday afternoon at 1:40 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Wauthour at Youngwood, where he boarded, were held yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at the house with interment in the Mill Run cemetery. Influenza was the cause of his death. The deceased was born at Mill Run and spent most of his early life there. About five years ago he located in Connelville, going from there to Youngwood, where he was a Pennsylvania railroad engineer about 18 months. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. In addition to his parents Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Bigam of Mill Run one brother, Karl, and one sister, Agnes at home, survive. A brother, Clarence, 18 years old, died six months ago.

FAMOUS OLD ENGLISH FORT

Perchester Castle, Obsolete Now, Must Have Been Place of Great Strength in Its Day.

For a way, behind all that the majority of people know of Portsmouth (Eng.) harbor—the outer basin with the ships of all kinds and descriptions coming and going in it from the great battle cruisers to the steamers plying to and fro from the Isle of Wight—far from all the bustle of the harbor side at the extreme end of a great stretch of tidal water, backed by the long, low line of the downs, stands Perchester castle. Roman as its name denotes, Perchester is said to have been one of the nine fortresses built by the Romans to defend the British coast against marauding pirates from across the North Sea. However, this may happen to be, the walls which face the huge expanse of mud flats at low tide and water at high tide are really the work of Roman builders, which is a great deal more than can be said for many of the so-called "Roman walls" in other places. Wonderful walls they are, too—Roman builders never did things by halves—fully ten feet thick and built of flint and concrete with courses of limestone slabs.

The strength of the place before artillery came into use, or against an enemy unprovided with it, must have been enormous, and its situation must have made it almost impregnable. The Normans recognized its value and Henry I added the great keep and many of the other buildings.

World's Wheat Consumption.

Per capita consumption of wheat for all purposes during the ten years 1902-1911, averaged 8.80 bushels per year in France, 8.20 bushels in Belgium, 6.81 bushels in the United States, 6.21 bushels in Italy, 6.17 bushels in the United Kingdom, 4.60 bushels in Austria-Hungary, 4.29 bushels in the Netherlands, 3.38 bushels in Germany (rye consumption being high), 0.85 bushel in British India, and 0.52 bushel in Japan, rice consumption being high in the last two countries.

reign. During the captivity of Francis there had been a cessation of hostilities, but no sooner did Francis feel himself once more seated on his throne than he began to organize for a renewal of the war.

After waiting three months Charles sent embassies to Francis, demanding the fulfillment of the treaty of Madrid. The king said he would have to consult the Burgundians. The Burgundians refused to be handled over Francis would pay an indemnity for Burgundy and keep the rest of the treaty, including the relinquishment of all his Italian possessions.

Francis Set His Army in Motion. The king of France swore that if the treaty was not kept he would return and deliver himself up. "Let him keep his oath," said Charles, adding some other remarks about conduct unbecoming a man of honor, which were reported back to Francis. Francis set his army in motion on August 8, and the war between him and the emperor began again after a truce of fifteen months, to last three years longer. Angered at the charge of bad faith made by Charles, Francis sent a herald to the emperor with a cartel written in his own hand, saying, "You have lied in your throat in saying that we have done anything unworthy of a gentleman of honor. Appoint a time and place of meeting and we will bring our sword for you to cross."

When Charles received this challenge he consulted the grandees of his kingdom. The duke of Infantado gave the opinion that, whatever might be the popular opinion, kings were bound by the laws of honor as other people. However, he did not think the fulfillment of a treaty was a fit subject to be decided by a duel. Charles nevertheless, sent his herald to Francis, accepting the challenge and appointing a time and place for the meeting. He also gave the herald a long written argument on the treaty of Madrid, and treaties in general, with which he was to preface the acceptance of the challenge.

When the herald began to read, Francis stopped him with: "I will hear nothing but the time and place. Does he accept?"

"Permit me to do my office," said the herald.

"Nay," cried the king, "you shall not speak before giving me the time and place."

"Sir, then give me my safe conduct home," said the herald.

"Let him have it," cried the king—and so there was no duel.

LINK WITH PREHISTORIC DAYS

Hoatzin Birds, Found in Guiana, Have Long Been a Subject of Study by Scientists.

Running on all fours; climbing with fingers and toes like monkeys; diving and swimming as skillfully as if they were denizens of the ocean, the hoatzin birds, found in Guiana perpetuate the prehistoric days when reptiles were the dominant beings. It can neither sing nor fly gracefully and its very presence is betrayed by its strong odor, but it is none the less of great importance in the bird world because of its strange prehistoric attributes.

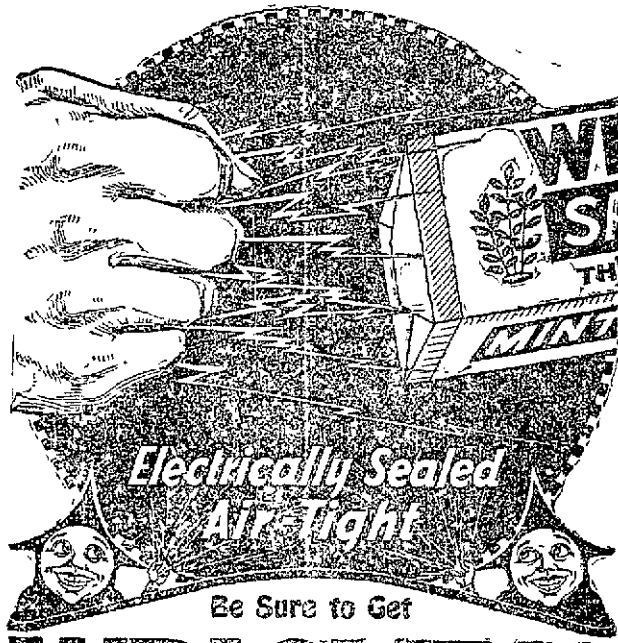

The nests of the old birds are always built out over the water, frequently some 15 feet above the surface, and the young birds, with their wings turned back and folded up, swim like a diver's hands, will dive cleanly from the nest into the water and swim like a fish. When they wish to return to the nest they climb on shore and walking on their feet and handlike ends of their wings will creep back to the tree and then climb like a monkey, using what is virtually the thumb and first fingers of their strange wings. They have a long neck and head far more reptilian than birdlike, and despite their lack of beauty many scientific expeditions have been sent to Guiana to photograph and study these birds who represent all the ages of history from reptile to modern life.

MANY PERSONS 'SOUND BLIND'

Peculiar Affliction That It Is Now Asserted Is Not Uncommon Among Mankind.

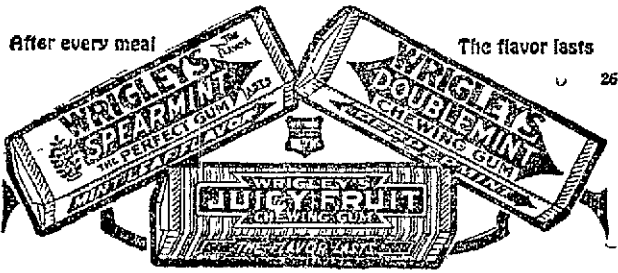

Color blindness is by no means an uncommon complaint, for many people, although they may possess perfect eyesight for reading or seeing long distances, are quite unable to distinguish between green and red and many other pairs of colors. Lately it has been found that some suffer from an exactly similar affection of the hearing power—that is, an inability to distinguish particular shades of sound. A school teacher reports a boy who could not distinguish at all between the sounds of "very," "perry" and "poly," and yet he could hear at as great a distance as anybody. Another youngster would spell "different," "drifted." He said that was how it sounded to him. Several others ran the letters "n," "u" and "l" together in a hopeless way, being unable to tell one from the other.

Giotti. Vincenzo Giotti was a native of Bologna, born about 1380. He became a scholar of Dionysius Calvarte at the time that Guido Reni studied under that master. At twenty years of age he went to Rome in company with Guido, and there painted some pictures. He was then invited to the court of Naples, where he passed the remainder of his life. Giotti possessed so ready an invention, and such surprising facility, that Orlandi states, from a list of his works, found after his death, that he had painted no fewer than 218 pictures for public positions in the different towns of the kingdom of Naples. He died at Reggio in 1393.

This Face Will Confront You Everywhere

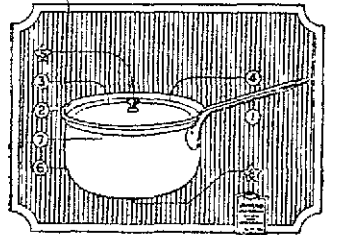

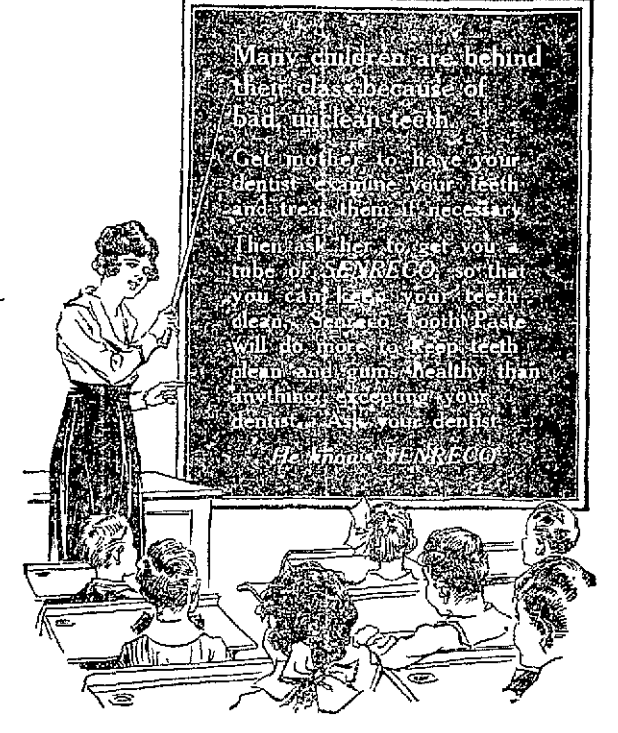

THIS is the poster which by May 10 will have carried this simple workman's portrait onto more billboards in the country than ever bore the likeness of William Jennings Bryan or the late Theodore Roosevelt. For Tony is the original of this patriotic workman who declares here "Sure, We'll Finish the Job."

Without doubt this Victory Liberty Loan poster, carrying its true American sentiment, will be one of the most popular posters to have been used in any branch of war relief propaganda in this country. Several million copies of it are being sent out in response to the demands of district and local Victory Liberty Loan organizations throughout the country.

That is the reason it was selected for the inspiration and the prizes in the young people's essay contest being conducted throughout the Fourth District—that and the fact that its slogan furnishes the best subject in the world for such an essay.

Dropping to his knees Barnes felt for and touched wet coarse garments and gasped.

"My God! Have you killed him?"

"Temporarily," said Sprouse between his teeth. "Here unwind the rope I've got around my waist. Take the end—here. Got a knife? Cut off a section about three feet long. I'll get the gas in his mouth while you're doing it. Hangmen always carry their own ropes." he concluded with a grimace. "Get it cut? Well, cut two more sections, same length."

With incredible swiftness the two of them bound the feet, knees and arms of the inert victim.

"I came prepared," said Sprouse, so calmly that Barnes marveled at the iron nerve of the man.

"By heaven, Sprouse—I believe he's dead. We—we haven't any right to kill a—"

"Don't be foolish," snapped Sprouse. "It wasn't much of a crack and it was necessary." Straightening up, with a sigh of satisfaction, he laid his hand on Barnes' shoulder. "We've just got to go through with it now. Barnes. We'll never get another chance. Putting that fellow out of business means a fortune for you."

He dropped to his knees and began searching over the ground with his hands. "Here it is. You can't see it, of course. So I'll tell you what it is. A nice little block of sandalwood. I've already got his nice little hammer, so we'll see what we can raise in the way of wireless chit-chat."

Without the slightest hesitation he struck a succession of quick, confident blows upon the block of wood.

"By gad you are a wonder!"

"Wait till tomorrow before you say that," replied Sprouse, attentively. "Come along now. Stick to the trail. We've got to land the other one."

Turning sharply to the right, Sprouse guided his companion through the brush for some distance and once more came to a halt. Again he stole on ahead, and before the slow, confident, even, careless progress of a man ceased as abruptly as that of the comrade who lay helpless in the thicker below.

Barnes laid a firm, detaining hand on the man's shoulder.

"See here, Sprouse," he whispered. "It's all very well for you, knocking men over like this, but just what is your object? What does all this lead up to?"

Sprouse broke in, and there was not the slightest trace of emotion in his whisper.

"Quite right. You ought to know. I suppose you thought I was bringing you up here for a Romeo and Juliet tete-a-tete with the beautiful Miss Cameron—and for nothing else. Well, in a way, you are right. But first of all, my business is to recover the crown jewels and parchments. I am going into that house and take them from the man who I saw in London. If he has them, if he hasn't them my work here is a failure."

"Going into the house?" gasped Barnes. "Why, my God, man, that is impossible. You would be shot down as an ordinary burglar and the law would justify them for killing you. I must insist."

"I am not asking you to go into the house, my friend. I shall go alone," said Sprouse coolly.

"On the other hand, I came up here to rescue a helpless—"

"Keep cool! It's the only way. Now listen. She has designated her room and the windows that are hers. She is lying awake up there, now, taking it from me hoping that you will come tonight. I shall lead you directly to her window. And then comes the only chance we take—the only chance where we gamble. There will not be a light in her window, but that won't make any difference. This nobby cane I'm carrying is in reality a collapsible fishing rod. First we use it to tap gently on her window ledge or shade or whatever we find. Then you pass up a little note to her. Here is paper and pencil. Say that you are below her window and—well, ready to take her away. Tell her to lower her valuable some clothes, etc. from the window by means of the rope we'll pass up on the pole. There is a remote possibility that she may have the jewels in her room. For certain reasons they may have permitted her to retain them. If such is the case our work is easy. If they have taken them away from her she'll say so, some way or another—and she will not leave! Now I've had a good look at the front of that house. It is covered with a lattice work and huge vines. I can shin up like a squirrel and go through her room to the—"

"Are you crazy, Sprouse? You'd take your life in your hands and—"

"See here," said Sprouse shortly. "I am not risking my life for the fun of the thing. I am risking it for her. I have that in mind—for her and her people. And if I am killed they won't even say 'Well done, good and faithful servant.' So let's not argue the point. Are you going to stand by me or—back out?"

Barnes was shamed. "I'll stand by you," he said, and they stole forward. There were no lights visible. The house was even darker than the night itself. It was vaguely outlined by a deeper shade of black.

At last they were within a few yards of the entrance and at the edge of a small space that had been cleared of shrubbery. Here Sprouse stopped and began to adjust the sections of his fishing rod.

"Write," he whispered. "There is a faint glow of light up there to the right. The third window did you say? Well, that's about where I should locate it."

The tiny metallic tip of the rod, held in the upstretched hand of Barnes, much the taller of the two men, barely reached the window ledge. He tapped gently, persistently on the hard surface. Just as they were beginning to think that she was asleep and that their efforts were in vain their straining eyes made out a shadowy object projecting slightly beyond the sill.

After a moment or two of suspense Barnes experienced a peculiar, almost electric shock. Someone had seized the tip of the rod; it stiffened suddenly the vibrations due to its flexibility ceasing. Someone was untying the bit of paper he had fastened to the rod, and with fingers that shook and were clumsy with eagerness.

He had written "I am outside with a trusted friend, ready to do your bidding. Two of the guards are safely bound and out of the way. Now is our chance. We will never have another. If you are prepared to come with me now write me a word or two and drop it to the ground. I will pass up a rope to you and you may lower anything you wish to carry away with you. But be exceedingly careful. Take time. Don't hurry. A single one of your movements." He signed it with a large "B."

It seemed an hour before their eyes distinguished the shadowy head above. As a matter of fact but a few minutes had passed. During the wait Sprouse had noiselessly removed his coat, a proceeding that puzzled Barnes. Something light fell to the ground. It was Sprouse who stooped and searched for it in the grass. When he resumed an upright posture he put his lips close to Barnes' ear and whispered:

"I will put my coat over your head. Here is a little electric torch. Don't flash it until I am sure the coast is arranged so that you can do so without a gleam of light getting out from under." He pressed the torch and a bit of closely folded paper in the other's hand and carefully draped the coat over his head.

Barnes read "Thank God! I was afraid you would wait until tomorrow night. Then it would have been too late. I must get away tonight but I cannot leave—I dare not leave without something that is concealed in another part of the house. I do not know how to secure it. My door is locked from the outside. What am I to do? I would rather die than to go away without it."

Hastily he wrote. If you do not come at once, we will force our way into the house and fight it out with them all. My friend is coming up the stairs. Let him enter the window. Tell him where to go and he will do the rest. He is a miracle man. Nothing is impossible to him. If he does not return in ten minutes I shall follow. There was no response to this. The head reappeared in the window but no word came down.

Sprouse whispered "I am going up. Stay here. If you hear a commotion in the house, run for it. Don't wait for me. I'll probably be done for."

"I'll do just as I please about running," said Barnes and there was a deep thrill in his whisper. "Good luck, God help you if they catch you."

"Not even he could help me then. Good by. I'll do what I can to induce her to drop out of the window if anything goes wrong with me downstairs."

A moment later he was silently scaling the wall of the house, feeling his way carefully testing every precarious foothold dragging himself painfully upwards by means of the most uncanny, animal-like strength and stealth.

Barnes could not recall drawing a single breath from the instant the man left his side until the faintly luminous square above his head was obliterated by the black of his body as it wriggled over the ledge.

We will follow Sprouse. When he crawled through the window and stood erect inside the room he found himself confronted by a tall, shadowy figure standing half way between him and the door.

He advanced a step or two and uttered a soft hiss of warning.

"Not a sound," he whispered drawing still nearer. "I have come four thousand miles to help you, countless. This is not the time or place to explain. We haven't a moment to waste. I need only say that I have been sent from Paris by persons you know to aid you in delivering the crown jewels into the custody of your country's minister in Paris. We must act swiftly. Tell me where they are. I will get them."

"Not a Sound," He Whispered.

"Who are you?" she whispered tensely.

"My name is Theodore Sprouse. I have been loaned to your embassy by my own government. I beg of you do not ask questions now. Tell me where the prince sleeps, how I may get to his room."

"You know that he is the prince?"

"And that you are his cousin?"

She was silent for a moment. "Not only is it impossible for you to enter his room but it is equally impossible for you to get out of this one except by the way you entered. If I thought there was the slightest chance for you to—"

"Let me be the judge of that, countless. Where is his room?"

"The last to the right as you leave this door—at the extreme end of the corridor. Across the hall from his room you will see an open door. A man sits in there all night long keeping watch. You could not approach a Prince's door without being seen by that watcher."

You said in your note to Barnes that there—something was in Curtis' study.

The prince sleeps in Mr. Curtis' room. The study adjoins it, and can only be entered from the bedroom. There is no other door. What are you doing?"

"I am going to take a peep over the transom first of all. If the coast is clear, I shall take a little stroll down the hall. Do not be alarmed. I will come back—with the things we both want. Pardon me. He sat down on the edge of the bed and removed his shoes. She watched him as if fascinated while he opened the bosom of his soft shirt and stuffed the wet shoes inside.

Then he said: "You are not dressed for this. Stay I suggest the whole. I am outside you slip on a dark skirt and coat? You cannot go far in that dressing gown. It would be in shreds before you had gone a hundred feet through the brush. If I do not return to this room inside of fifteen minutes, or if you hear sounds of a struggle, crawl through the window and go down the vines. Barnes will look out for you."

"You must not fail Theodore Sprouse," she whispered. "I must regain the jewels and the state papers. I cannot go without—"

"I shall do my best," he said simply. Silently he drew a chair to the door, mounted it and drawing himself up by his hands poked his head through the open transom. An instant later he was on the floor again. She heard him in setting a key in the lock. Almost before she could realize that it had actually happened, the door opened slowly and cautiously, and his thin, wiry figure slid through what seemed to be no more than a crack. As softly the door was closed.

For a long time she stood, dazed and unbelieving in the center of the room, staring at the door. She held her breath, listening for the sound that was so soon to come—and the she heard perhaps. A prayer formed on her lips and went voicelessly up to God.

Suddenly she roused herself from the stupefaction that held her. With feverish haste she snatched up garments from the chair on which she had carefully placed them in anticipation of the emergency that now presented itself. A blouse (which she neglected to button), a short skirt of some dark material, a jacket, and a pair of stout walking shoes (which she failed to lace) completed the swift transformation. As she glided to the window she jammed the pins into a small black hat of felt. Then she peered over the ledge.

She started back, stifling a cry with her hand. A man's head had almost come in contact with her own as she leaned out. A man's hand reached over and grasped the inner ledge of the casement and then a man's face was dimly revealed to her startled gaze.

Empires That Have Fallen

Six empires have disappeared within the memory of living men. Nearly 800,000,000 people close to one-half the world's population have been released from the shackles of imperialism since 1871. History has no parallel for such changes. In the retrospect of history 50 years are but a flash in the march of the ages and yet since 1871 the doctrine of republicanism has been embraced by half the world. Not all the preceding 2,000 years of mankind's march toward liberty records such progress.

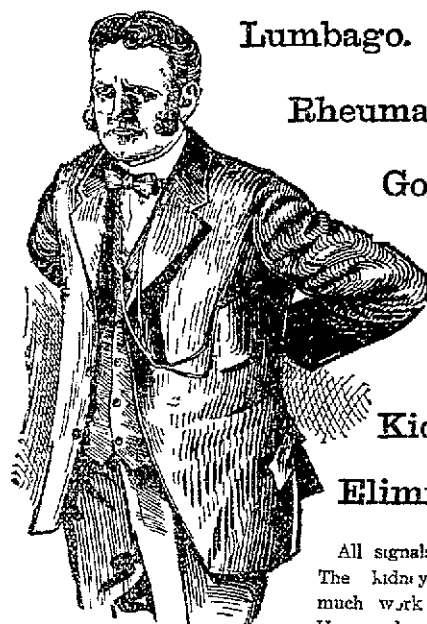

Six empires have laid down crown and scepter since Theodore Roosevelt became the exponent of the strenuous life. Three have died and one was murdered. The other two are in exile, while of the three still living, only one the boy emperor of China is still enjoying the luxuries that sweeten life for those in high places. It was Napoleon III who led this debacle of imperialism. Dom Pedro of Brazil was next and the last of the Manchurian dynasty followed. The crash of the three empires—Russian, Austrian, Hun, German—resulted from two wars for democracy. When it comes to mere kings' memory cannot recall them all for they have tumbled everywhere from Hawaii to Portugal, from Saxony to Bulgaria.

CONNELLSVILLE HIGH DRIBBLERS HAVE GOOD YEAR

In Season Just Closed Locals
Win 18 Games Out of Total of 23 Played.

CREDIT GOES TO BODE

Coach of Team Is Responsible in Large Measure for Success of the Five Boys Enthusiastic Over the Game and Work in Close Harmony.

In what was practically its first season of basketball, or at least what was the first full season ever played by a Conneltsville high school basketball team, the aggregation representing the local institution came off with some high honors. Some worthy material was developed and the reputation for clean sports which is held by the school was upheld.

During the entire season 23 games were played by the team. This is considered an exceptionally heavy schedule for a high school team and considering that the Cokers were only beginners the results were highly gratifying. Of the total of 23 played, 18 were won and five lost.

Among the teams defeated by Conneltsville were some crack organizations. Included were Braddock, which team won the championship of Section 2, Western Pennsylvania Intercollegiate league, and also Johnstown and Norwin.

The total number of points scored by Conneltsville in the season was 850 compared with 563 for opponents. The Cokers made the exceptionally fine record of outscoring their combined opponents by 287 points.

The average score per game made by Conneltsville was 36-22-45 and the average of the opposing teams was 24-17-23. In field goals the Cokers garnered 371 compared with 163 for all opponents, outpointing the combined teams by 128 baskets.

The locals also secured a lead over all opponents in free shooting, being credited with 228 out of 338 against 202 out of 249. Opposing teams committed 39 more fouls in the season than did the Conneltsville quintet.

Of the total of 211 field goals scored by Conneltsville, forwards or the team made 173, guards 29 and centers 118. Opposing forwards scored 108 baskets, opposing centers 57 and opposing guards 18.

In the individual scoring James McConnell, who negotiated the center position, led. He caged 102 field goals in 20 games played. He missed the remaining three games on account of sickness. His ability to shoot from practically any angle on the floor gave him his high score.

In the number of field goals made George (Red) Struble was second. He made 90 baskets in 22 games. During the season he also shot 51 out of 83 tries for foul goals.

Lions scored 67 baskets in 21 games and dropped the sphere through the net 150 times out of 285 free tries. Buttermore, playing in 21 games, scored 19 field goals. "Doc" did not always start the games but he generally got in long enough to score at least one basket. He also got two from the free line out of two attempts.

Moore, captain of the team, playing at guard in 23 games, scored 11 baskets. He is given much credit, however, for the small scores made by visiting teams.

Bufano, who will lead the floor aggregation next season, played in 15 games. He scored four baskets and made 15 out of 25 tries for foul goals. Joe McConnell, Moore's mate at guard, scored three baskets in 22 games.

Other scores follow: Robinson, six in four games; Jones, two in four games; Durnell, two in four games; Danner, two in six games; McNeefee, two in six games.

The team was coached by Fred A. Bode and the success of the aggregation was due in a great measure to his untiring efforts. Himself a good player, Bode had the knack of instructing those in his charge how to handle the ball in a game. Out of practically green material he developed a quintet of dribblers which won the admiration of all local fans. Although somewhat lax in shooting a little, the team was always devoid of individual stalling and became a smooth running machine that was hard to stop. The passing of the ball, essential in a winning organization, was thoroughly drilled into every man before he could make the team. Bode had the cooperation of the boys, who displayed great enthusiasm for the game, and through this get together spirit, all worked in harmony.

Frail, Sickly Children Improve Rapidly on Vinol

The reason we so strongly recommend Vinol for frail, sickly children is because it is a non-secret remedy which contains Beef and Cod Liver Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptones and Glycerophosphates—but no oil—the very elements needed to build them up. It is delicious to the taste, and children love it.

These Two Mothers Have Proved This.

OVER 8,000 WORKERS YET IN SERVICE OVERSEAS, FIVE MONTHS AFTER WAR'S END

NEW YORK, April 16.—Five months after the signing of the armistice the Y. M. C. A. has 8,350 workers overseas, according to an official statement issued today by the National War Work council of the association. The figure shows an increase of 728 workers since last November, indicating that the Y. M. C. A. has strengthened its forces, despite the return of troops to America, to meet the greater need for its work that came with the end of the fighting.

Of the total number, exclusive of the entertainment section, 5,528 are men, a small portion of whom are directing the "Y" overseas work from the Paris headquarters, while the great majority are scattered from Archangel to Rome and from Vladivostok to Brest, and London and the north of Scotland. There are 2,187 women workers abroad. Most of these are helping to give pleasure to the men who go to the Y. M. C. A. leave areas, on the Riviera, at Aix les Bains, at Cantiers in the Hautes Pyrennees and elsewhere. More than 40 are assisting in the motion picture entertainment of the troops.

In the Overseas Entertainment bureau of the War Work council there are 655 men and women workers abroad. Of these, 352 were recruited by the Overseas Theatre league workers—125 men and 227 women.
